There are some children among the hostages being held by the Taliban in Afghanistan. Controversy has surrounded the release of two Taliban leaders by the United States government in exchange for the release of American hostages. The United Nations has called for an end to the violence in Afghanistan and the release of all political prisoners. Human Rights Watch has published a report documenting the human rights violations committed by the Taliban and the Afghan government. The report calls for an end to the violence and for a peaceful resolution of the conflict.
