Subject: Query from Human Rights Watch

Dear Belkis,

The KRG policy's main objective is the voluntary return of the IDPs to their areas of origin without discrimination based on ethnic and religious background. The decision for return remains with the IDPs, and the KRG facilitates the return in partnership with Iraqi Federal government mainly the Ministry of Migration and Immigration as well as provincial authorities. All IDPs in KR camps are free to return. Please find attached (population stats) on the population of the Hasansham area villages before and after 2014, and which indicates that return process has been happening.

Talks are ongoing with Baghdad for a settlement that addresses security concerns and allows families a dignified return home. The KRG and provincial local authorities expresses their readiness to investigate into the specified cases of non-return of the residents to the villages that are liberated from ISIL.

In terms of the security situation of those villages, there are still IEDs and landmines that need to be cleared from those areas. ISIL still poses as a threat to security of the locals and the stability of those liberated areas upon their return, as there are alleged ISIL sleeping cells. Following the defeat of ISIL, some of the residents from those neighboring villages joined ISIL which constitutes another impediment to return.

Additionally, due to the heavy bombardments and attacks during ISIL war, many destructions and damages occurred. Hence, there are shortages of services relating to education, healthcare, electricity, and water accessible.

There are also no sources of income that the locals may improve their living conditions or live on, making it more challenging for IDPs to return. In areas in Ninevah Province and other Article 140 areas, similarly, the IDPs cannot return as their areas have not been cleaned from IEDs. Also, there are remaining social conflicts and property and land ownership issues.

IDPs whose villages are safe and convenient for living have returned. For example, Zahra Khaton village is located on the main Erbil - Mosul Road, locals of the village are selling their farming products to provide a living for themselves. Likewise, villages such as Hassansham, Sevdinan and Darashakran receive basic services and job opportunities are available. The KRG in coordination with INGOs and UN agencies continues to provide aid and services to all IDPs living in the IDP camps including the people living in Hassansham camp.

Please find attached (List 1) the list of areas in Ninewa where IDPs have not returned due to the above-mentioned reasons.

Attached also you will find (List 2) that indicates the number of IDPs and the names of villages in Ninewa that residents have returned.

Sincere regards,

Dr. Dindar Zebari

Dear Belkis,

This is just a clarification on List 1 that we had sent you before. Those are the areas that return to is difficult but it does not mean that people have not returned to it.

Kind regards,
Dindar
