Information and Privacy Coordinator
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, DC 20505

January 18, 2017

To Whom It May Concern:

Through this letter, Human Rights Watch (“HRW”) requests copies of documents pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. § 552.

We request these documents on an expedited basis; we also seek a public interest fee waiver and news media fee status.

As explained below, our request concerns final or working policy and other documents that relate to the ability of the Central Intelligence Agency (“CIA”) to acquire, or obtain access to, communications and related data that the US government has acquired under 50 U.S.C. § 1881a (also known as Section 702 of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act, “FISA”) or Executive Order 12333 (“EO 12333”). In the context of this request, “related data,” also commonly known as “metadata,” refers to data that describe a communication: for example, the date, time, and duration of a telephone conversation, or the date, time, sender, and recipients of an e-mail. For our purposes, “related data” also includes location data.

Below, we list our specific requests, followed by an explanation of the relevant laws. We also provide details regarding our requests for expedited processing, a public interest fee waiver, and news media fee status.

I. Requested records

Human Rights Watch respectfully requests copies of the following documents, preferably in electronic format and on a rolling basis as the CIA locates them:

1. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, procedures, policies, and training materials that meaningfully discuss or address the CIA’s authority to acquire or collect communications or related data pursuant to Section 702 or Executive Order 12333 in matters implicating the prevention, detection, assessment, investigation, or prosecution of immigration or drug-related activities domestically or internationally.

- a. Please note that some materials may refer to Section 702 simply as the “FISA Amendments Act” (or “FAA”), of which it was a part.
2. Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court (“FISC”) materials (including, e.g., submissions, opinions, orders, and petitions) that meaningfully discuss or address the CIA’s authority to acquire or collect communications or related data pursuant to Section 702 or Executive Order 12333 in matters implicated the prevention, detection, assessment, investigation, or prosecution of immigration or drug-related activities domestically or internationally.
3. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, procedures, policies, and training materials that meaningfully discuss or address the CIA’s authority to receive, disseminate, retain, minimize, use, query, or authorize the querying of communications or related data the US government has obtained pursuant to Section 702 or Executive Order 12333, insofar as these activities implicate the prevention, detection, assessment, investigation, or prosecution of drug- or immigration-related activities domestically or internationally.
  - a. This request includes (but is not limited to) records meaningfully discussing the CIA’s treatment of data accessible to, made available to, or disseminated by it through fusion centers, joint task forces, and databases to which the CIA may have access, such as CrissCross/Proton and IC Reach.
4. FISC materials that meaningfully discuss or address the CIA’s authority to receive, disseminate, retain, minimize, use, query, or authorize the querying of communications or related data the US government has obtained pursuant to Section 702 or Executive Order 12333, insofar as these activities implicate the prevention, detection, assessment, investigation, or prosecution of drug- or immigration-related activities domestically or internationally.
  - a. This request includes (but is not limited to) records meaningfully discussing the CIA’s treatment of data accessible to, made available to, or disseminated by it through fusion centers, joint task forces, and databases to which the CIA may have access, such as CrissCross/Proton and IC Reach.
5. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, procedures, policies, training materials, and memoranda of agreement (with appendices where applicable) concerning the CIA’s ability to request raw signals intelligence the NSA has acquired pursuant to Executive Order 12333.
6. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, procedures, policies, training materials, memoranda of agreement, and FISC materials concerning the CIA’s treatment of communications and related data belonging to United States persons that has been acquired pursuant to Section 702 or Executive Order 12333.

7. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, policies, procedures, training materials, and FISC materials that concern any ability on the part of the CIA to nominate targets for communications surveillance under Section 702 or Executive Order 12333 to the NSA or another federal entity.
8. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, policies, procedures, training materials, and FISC materials that concern the authority or practice of any other federal agency or state, local, tribal, or private entity to nominate targets to the CIA for the purposes of surveillance conducted pursuant to Executive Order 12333.
9. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, policies, procedures, training materials, and FISC materials that concern the CIA's treatment of attorney-client communications or related data that the US government originally obtained pursuant to Section 702 or Executive Order 12333.
10. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, policies, procedures, training materials, and FISC materials that concern the CIA's use of attorneys', journalists', or medical professionals' identifiers (for example, e-mail addresses, or telephone numbers) as selectors or query terms for the purposes of acquiring, collecting, or querying data pursuant to Section 702 or Executive Order 12333.
11. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, policies, procedures, training materials, and FISC materials that concern the interpretation or application of FISA provision 50 U.S.C. § 1801(f)(4), which concerns "the installation or use of an electronic, mechanical, or other surveillance device in the United States for monitoring to acquire information, other than from a wire or radio communication."
12. Reports, assessments, or recommendations of, or letters to or from, the Privacy and Civil Liberties Oversight Board that concern the FBI's communications surveillance activities conducted pursuant to Section 702 or Executive Order 12333 (to include querying).
13. Formal, final, or implemented legal opinions and determinations, policies, procedures, and training materials that concern the CIA's ability to request pretextual stops (potentially also known as "whisper" or "wall"/"wall-off"/"walled-off" stops) of persons or vessels, or other forms of "parallel construction" or "parallel reconstruction."<sup>1</sup>

14. Any reports or other conclusions of relevant Inspectors General concerning activities of the nature described in (1)-(11) and (13) above.

Please note that where Executive Order 12333 is concerned, we request policies and procedures only insofar as they remain in effect as of the date of this request. Where new policies or procedures are adopted following this request but prior to disclosure, we also request the policies and procedures that are in effect as of the date of disclosure.

For the purposes of this request, the term “immigration” should be understood to encompass, inter alia, relevant activities of refugees and asylum-seekers, as well as documented or undocumented immigrants or would-be immigrants.

We request these records only insofar as they have not yet been publicly released.

II. Background

a. Section 702 of the FISA Amendments Act

In 2005, the New York Times reported that the US executive branch had been monitoring the international telephone and Internet communications of people in the United States, based on an executive order and without obtaining judicial warrants.<sup>2</sup> Congress ultimately responded to these revelations by adopting the FISA Amendments Act (“FAA”) of 2008, which added a set of provisions to FISA.

One of these new provisions, Section 702, is now found at 50 U.S.C. § 1881a and empowers the Attorney General and the Director of National Intelligence to authorize surveillance that “target[s] persons reasonably believed to be located outside the United States,” so long as a “significant purpose” of the surveillance is to obtain “foreign intelligence information.”<sup>3</sup> Elsewhere, FISA defines the latter term as including, among other things, information related to “the conduct of the foreign affairs of the United States.”<sup>4</sup>

Section 702 requires the Attorney General to adopt “targeting” and “minimization” procedures that are “reasonably designed” to provide certain protections to “United States persons.” (The latter term includes US citizens, aliens lawfully admitted for permanent residence, and certain corporations and unincorporated associations.<sup>5</sup>) The Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court must review these targeting and minimization procedures annually; however, the Court does not authorize or approve any individual surveillance targets.<sup>6</sup> The Office of the Director of National Intelligence has declassified and released the 2015 minimization procedures for the NSA, FBI, CIA, and National Counterterrorism Center.<sup>7</sup>

Following former Booz Allen Hamilton contractor Edward Snowden’s disclosure of materials concerning NSA surveillance, the Privacy and Civil Liberties Oversight Board (“PCLOB”) confirmed and described, in a public report whose contents are entirely unclassified, two types of surveillance activity the executive branch conducts pursuant to Section 702. Through the first of these two activities, “PRISM collection,” the executive branch “sends a selector, such as an email address, to a United States-based electronic communications service provider”; the provider is then “compelled to give the communications sent to or from that selector to the government.”<sup>8</sup>

Through the second Section 702 surveillance activity described by PCLOB, “upstream collection,” the government compels communications companies to search the telephone and Internet communications that flow over certain basic pieces of communications infrastructure (including the circuits that are known as the “Internet backbone”).<sup>9</sup>

After the NSA or FBI has acquired data through Section 702 surveillance, these agencies have the ability to “query” (i.e., search) the data in a manner that is similar to searches an Internet user conducts using a search engine, including by using terms such as “a key word or phrase.”<sup>10</sup> The CIA is also authorized to query raw Section 702 data.<sup>11</sup>

Where the dissemination of communications acquired through Section 702 surveillance is concerned, the CIA’s minimization procedures allow the Agency to share such data with other federal agencies for analytic purposes, and also give the Agency broad powers to distribute such data to foreign governments.<sup>12</sup>

Section 702, along with other provisions of Title VII of the FAA, is scheduled to expire on December 31, 2017 unless Congress renews it.<sup>13</sup>

Originally issued in 1981, EO 12333 governs United States intelligence activities and was most recently amended in 2008.<sup>14</sup> It provides, inter alia, that the US Intelligence Community must “collect information concerning, and conduct activities to protect against . . . international criminal drug activities.”<sup>15</sup> The order also authorizes the Intelligence Community to collect, retain, and disseminate “[i]nformation obtained in the course of a lawful foreign intelligence” or “international drug” investigation, as well as “[i]ncidentally obtained information that may indicate involvement in activities that may violate Federal, state, local, or foreign laws”; “information concerning persons who are reasonably believed to be potential sources or contacts.”<sup>16</sup>

On January 12, 2017, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence publicly released procedures permitting the NSA to disseminate raw signals intelligence obtained pursuant to EO 12333—including communications of US persons—to other Intelligence Community elements in some circumstances.<sup>17</sup>

III. Request for expedited processing

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(E) and 32 C.F.R. § 1900.34(c), HRW seeks expedited processing of this request.

There is a “compelling need” for the information we have requested, as HRW is “primarily engaged in disseminating information” and there is an urgent need for the organization to “inform the public concerning actual or alleged Federal Government activity” in the area of surveillance practices (5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(E)(v)(ii); 32 C.F.R. § 1900.34(c)(2)).

a. Human Rights Watch is primarily engaged in disseminating information

Human Rights Watch is a nonprofit organization comprised of human rights professionals who engage in extensive fact-finding and reporting on human rights conditions in the United States and elsewhere, providing original factual information and analyses to the US and global public and to media outlets. Where the practices of the United States’ Federal and state governments are concerned, for example, HRW has investigated and reported on interrogation techniques allegedly used by the Central Intelligence Agency, the impact of US surveillance on journalists and attorneys, and deportations for drug offenses.<sup>18</sup>

HRW's fact-finding work regularly forms the basis of reports by print, broadcast, and Internet media.<sup>19</sup> The organization also disseminates original reports and other factual content to the public, including through its website, www.hrw.org, which receives approximately 15 million unique visitors per year.

HRW therefore meets the statutory definition of a “representative of the news media” as an “entity that gathers information of potential interest to a segment of the public, uses its editorial skills to turn the raw materials into a distinct work, and distributes that work to an audience.” 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(A)(ii); see also Nat'l Sec. Archive v. Dep't of Def., 880 F.2d 1381, 1387 (D.C. Cir. 1989). The Department of Homeland Security recognized HRW as a representative of the news media when responding to a Freedom of Information Act request in 2008 (reference number DHS/OS/PRIV 08-832 PoKempner request).

b. There is an urgent need to inform the public concerning actual or alleged Federal Government surveillance activity

As noted above, Section 702 of FISA is scheduled to expire on December 31, 2017, unless Congress renews it. Particularly following the Snowden disclosures that began in June 2013, there has been intense media and public interest, as well as reporting by government-appointed panels, concerning programs conducted under this authority.<sup>20</sup> Multiple books have been published, and feature-length films created, that address Section 702 and/or other US government surveillance topics.<sup>21</sup> In May 2015, the United States Senate held a public hearing concerning the FAA (which includes Section 702), and two legislative amendments have previously been introduced in the House of Representatives with the intention of restricting the querying of Section 702 data.<sup>22</sup> This interest in actual or alleged federal government activities conducted pursuant to Section 702 is likely to intensify as the legislation's sunset deadline approaches and Congress is forced to decide whether to re-authorize this controversial provision. The public therefore urgently requires the information Human Rights Watch is seeking regarding the federal government's interpretation of Section 702 (and related policies and procedures) and its treatment of data acquired under this legal authority.

EO 12333 also continues to be the subject of public controversy and debate. Documents disclosed by Snowden that allegedly describe programs the United States operates pursuant to this Executive Order have been the subject of extensive media reporting.<sup>23</sup> Additionally, whistleblower John Napier Tye has repeatedly raised public concerns about the federal government's use of this authority in media outlets.<sup>24</sup> As mentioned above, on January 12, 2017, the government publicly released procedures concerning the NSA's dissemination of data obtained through EO 12333 to other US intelligence agencies; these procedures led to an expression of concern by the American Civil Liberties Union.<sup>25</sup>

The publicly available procedures concerning Section 702 and EO 12333 explicitly contemplate the acquisition and dissemination of US persons' communications and related data, as well as attorney-client communications.<sup>26</sup> As explained above, EO 12333 also expressly authorizes the Intelligence Community (of which the CIA is a member) to collect intelligence information as part of an "international drug" investigation or "foreign intelligence" investigation, while the PCLOB report on Section 702 and other publicly available government materials confirm that Section 702 data may be queried or disseminated in connection with criminal inquiries. Additionally, documents previously released by the Drug Enforcement Administration acknowledge the practice of using “parallel construction” or “parallel reconstruction” to prevent the disclosure of Intelligence Community sources and methods in court.<sup>27</sup> The requests we have made are therefore of a type that concern actual or alleged Federal government activity.

Thus, there is an urgent need for the public to be as fully informed as possible concerning the government’s activities pursuant to these two major surveillance authorities.

I, Dinah PoKempner, certify that this demonstration of compelling need is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

IV. Request for public interest fee waiver

HRW requests that the CIA search for, review, duplicate, and furnish any documents responsive to this submission without charge, as the “disclosure of the information is in the public interest because it is likely to contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations or activities of the government and is not primarily in the commercial interest of the requester” (5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(A)(iii); 32 C.F.R. § 1900.13(b)(2)). HRW is a non-profit organization and has no commercial interest in the CIA’s response to this request for documents. Additionally, this request fulfills the other criteria set out in 32 C.F.R. § 1900.13(b)(2) for requests that may be regarded as “in the public interest”: (1) the request concerns “operations or activities of the United States Government,” and (2) the disclosure of the requested documents would “contribute significantly to public understanding of United States Government operations and activities.”

a. The request concerns US government operations or activities

HRW’s request concerns documents pertaining to federal government surveillance activities conducted pursuant to two specific legal authorities: Section 702 of FISA and EO 12333. These authorities and procedures issued pursuant to them explicitly authorize or otherwise contemplate the government’s use of surveillance in the circumstances described therein. As noted above, the federal government’s surveillance activities under Section 702 of FISA have also previously been identified by PCLOB.

b. The disclosure of the records sought would contribute significantly to public understanding of these operations and activities

Through this request, HRW seeks legal analyses, policies, procedures, and training materials, all of which would (insofar as they exist) presumably establish the parameters and operations of, as well as safeguards applying to, the relevant US surveillance programs. Just as such foundational rules or guidance would presumably be intended to provide meaningful information about the activities in question to CIA personnel, they would equally provide meaningful information to the public about the nature and processes of these activities as well as applicable limits and safeguards. In particular, the disclosure of these materials would enable the public to ascertain the extent and nature of the CIA's relationship with these surveillance activities—a matter regarding which the public currently possesses little, if any, unambiguous and detailed information.

HRW disseminates information widely to other members of the media and to the general public (see above); information disclosed in response to this request would therefore contribute significantly to the public's understanding of the matter in question.

V. Request for news media fee status

HRW also requests an exemption from or waiver of other fees that might otherwise apply, as a member of the news media (5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(A)(ii)(II)-(III); 32 C.F.R. §§ 1900.02(h)(3), 1900.13(i)(2)); see Part III(a) above for an explanation of our status as a representative of the news media.
